WASHINGTON CITY:

WEDNESDAY ..... December 4, 1872.

Holiday Goods. Now is the time for dealers in all classes of holiday goods to advertise their wares. The largest and best purchasers almost invariably make their selections early in the season while stocks are full and varied, and before the rush of customers has set in. Those who are the first to make known to the public the attractions they propose to hold out are therefore sure to reap the richest harvest. We need hardly add, that to do this thoroughly the columns of THE STAR should be used. As an advertising medium it is concededly worth all the other papers in the city added together.

How a Sister Republic is Getting On. The Mexican republic at the last advices was in the enjoyment of general tranquility, interrupted, if at all, only by uncertainty as to the movements of Porficio Diaz, with some disquiet on account of the reported death of Manuel Lozada, cacque of Tepic. The President ad interim, Mr. Lerdo de Tejada, seems to have conducted himself with so much prudence as to have been subject to no other criticism except from such impatient persons as choose to find fault with him because of his abstaining from making any political changes pending the Presidential election, for which, as we think, he deserves commendation. The electoral returns already received, tend to show that he will be elected almost with unanimity. President Lerdo has employed the four months of his provisional government in the pacification of the country, which he has effected by acting steadily, not as the head of a party, but as the chief of the nation. Congress is occupied with constitutional reforms, more especially the establishment of a Senate and the making further provision for vacancies in the office of President. It will be remembered that by the constitution of Mexico there is no Vice President, and the only substitution is that of the president of the supreme court, which substitution is personal to him and does not include the senior or other members of the court: so that if Mr. Lerdo de Tejada should die to-day there is no person to take the place of President. In the United States, on the other hand, we have provided for three cases of substitution, namely, the Vice President, the President of the Senate pro tempore, and the Speaker of the House. There is one feature of public affairs in the Mexican republic, which seems sufficiently strange to us in the United States: that is, the readiness with which officers of the army get up military revolutions and still more the facility with which their criminal and treasonable acts are pardoned by the government. Thus General Profirio Diaz pronounces, that is, publishes a political programme of puerile generalities, which, however, proposed the forcible overthrow of the constitution for his own personal profitraises troops-organizes civil war-he and his partisans levy forced contributions on the country, commits ravage and spoliation in half a dozen states of the republic, are at length defeated by the troops of the government, and after all this, the vanquished rebels and traitors the full enjoyment of their previous rank and emoluments, either in the army or in Congress. Among the examples of this sort are two perafter having abandoned their seats in Congress war, have amiably resumed their seats as if gress. Such incidents as these are well calculated to a waken solicitude as to the future peace ailroad between Vera Cruz and Mexico will ielay the final opening of that road, and the great rival American railroad projects of Mr. Plumb and of General Rosecrans continue to be the subject of ardent debate in Congress.

Chicken-Salad Bribery and Corrap-

tion. The correspondent of the New York Sun, who signs himself "Sappho," has made the exciting discovery that Governor Cooke, Mr. Shepherd and other District officials, propose to bu," Congress, body and breeches, by treating the marmbers to a semi-occasional meal of warm victuals. Their "palatial residences" are to be the scene of this bacchanalian bribery-also the Club House. Mr. Sappho already scents the flesh-pots. We can fancy him rising from his virtuous, and filling, but somewhat monotonous hash and following his indignant nose to the neighborhood of the ings!" says this excited correspondent, sniffing down the Governor's area, "what do I smell? Oysters! Chicken fixings! Claret punch! Old what a temptation! No Congressman's henor is safe with these things about!" This correspondent doubtless argues well gress. On the contrary, members of Congress of good standing have been considered just as social courteries of the season as any other class a dinner invitation would be considered a corseriously compromised their official integrity by accepting such courtesies, or that our citizens were guilty of an attempt upon their virtue unfounded. A casual survey of Congress does here with bowels particularly pinched by famine. We don't believe that Governor Cooke, if he were so minded, could buy a single vote in either House with all the chicken salad

Ward Hunt, who has been nominated by the President as a Justice of the U. S. Supreme profession at the outset of his career, but in time acquired a high reputation as a counsellor, and in 1865 was elected a justice of the court of appeals by the republicans.

Judge Hunt, in his private life, has been irreproachable from his youth. He basbeen twice married-first to a daughter of the late Chief Justice Savage, and second to a daughter of the late James Taylor, of Albany, a lady universaily beloved.

While the influence of his fellow-townsman, Senator Conkling, doubtless had weight in his out distinction of party.

appointment, it is understood that he was warmly recommended for the position by almost every man of legal prominence in his neighborhood, (including Gov. Seymour,) with Messrs. Short, Shissler, and Green, of the District Pennsylvania Republican association, are seriously agitated because they were not consulted in regard to the inauguration ceremonies. It would save the gentlemen who have the matter in hand a vast deal of trouble and expense if Messrs. Short, Shissler, and Green would take the whole business in charge, but it is to be feared the shoulders and legs of the latter would be hardly equal to the weight.

to do escort duty for President Grant in the funeral prosession of Mr. Greeley to-day.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

The message and departmental reports sub-mitted to Congress on Monday had but little ef-fect in Wall street. The recommendations of the comptroller of the currency are generally regarded as wholesome and timely, in so far as they favor the modification of undue restricons upon banking operations, and the qualification, at least of the usury law.
